My name is Tammy Callahan, I own Quilting Up North in Port Wing, WI.

A little background on myself, I started sewing when I was 7. My mom is a wonderful teacher and she had lots of patience with me when I first started, I definitely got my love of sewing/quilting from her!

I started my working career after college by joining an insurance company in Illinois.

I worked there for 23 years while I raised my children. I quilted during that time (when I was not at work or out running kids from here to there). Needless to say, I have been quilting for many years and enjoy it immensely. I love to learn/teach new techniques, new tools and share tips, tricks, and ideas with others.

The shop has been in operation for 6 years and I love every minute of it! I get the best of all worlds because I get to meet wonderful people while also making quilt samples and long arming for others. Days are busy with creativity, and I am so blessed to be able to do what I dreamed of for many years.
